

Church Family News and Prayers

Words on words from Proverbs

The trouble with gossip is that it's so tasty
And we don't just nibble it, we swallow it whole.

Without wood, a fire goes out; without gossip, arguments fade away.
Cruel words crush the spirit; kind words bring you back to life.

The more you chatter on endlessly, the more likely you are to say something you shouldn't. Sometimes, the wisest thing you can do is say nothing. Open your mouth and you've got to accept the consequences – good or bad.

Arguments are like cracks in the walls of dams: if you don't sort the problem out there and then, you're in the firing line for a big-time disaster.

Talk without thought can cut and hurt but wise words heal the heart.

Lies are here today and gone in next to no time;
Truth has no "use by" date, no "best before" limit.
from Word on the Move - Dave Kitchen
